Abstract

TNET: A Cooperative Data Maintenance Consortium
Track: Transportation
Author(s): Michael Berman

King County's Department of Transportation is working with ESRI on a major development effort. The primary goal of this project is to enable public agencies in the region to seamlessly interact with each other in geographical terms as the county’s transportation needs and issues evolve towards ever deepening complexities and interdependence. These agencies become a partner in what we are thinking of as the Transportation Network (TNET) Consortium. This presentation will detail the highlights of this effort and demonstrate that cooperative projects such as TNET are technically and politically possible and eminently preferable over traditional data sharing approaches.
